

Student Right-to-Know Rates

The federal Student Right-to-Know Act requires that every year Taylor Business Institute determine and make available an overall completion/graduation rate of certificate or degree-seeking, first-time, full-time, undergraduate students. This Student-Right-to-Know graduation rate is broken down by various sub-categories, as determined and defined by the U.S. Department of Education. The Student Right-to-Know completion/graduation rate is based on a "cohort study," meaning that a group (or "cohort") of students is identified and then monitored over a period of time. The current rates, set out below, are based on the group of students who enrolled for the first-time, as full-time students, between September 1, 2020 and August 31, 2021. The rate represents the number of those students who earned their degree or certificate within 150% of the normal time required to complete their program. The rate does not include students who left school to serve in the armed forces, on official church missions, or in the foreign service of the federal government. Students who died or were totally and permanently disabled also are excluded.
